Q&A with Arlene Angard

Interior designer Arlene Angard moves her gallery to East 71st Street!

by New York Spaces

Arlene Angard Gallery. Photographs by Nicholas Doyle.

NYS: You have recently moved Arlene Angard Gallery (<http://www.arleneangard.com/>) to East 71st Street. What do you love about the new space?

Arlene Angard: (<http://www.arleneangard.com/>) Having an Art Gallery off Madison Avenue!

NYS: What kind of products and services do you offer at the gallery?

AA: Interior designs services, architectural services and art collections. My line of furniture and area rugs, contemporary art pieces complemented with antiques.

NYS: How would you describe the aesthetic in your space right now?

AA: Chic and Eclectic.

NYS: How does having an art gallery as your neighbor influence your design aesthetic?

AA: It ups my game. I very much enjoy being close to other galleries; it offers the client a fuller experience and also opens the door to more relationships and opportunities for Arlene Angard Designs.

Artwork by William Engel.

NYS: What are your favorite designs in the shop right now?

AA: A Catherine Wingback chair and a Neopolitan wood meeting table from the Arlene Angard Collection.

NYS: You always carry such wonderful artists in your gallery, who are you carrying now?

AA: Contemporary paintings by William Engel (<http://www.williamengel.net/>) and hand-blown sculptures by Jeremy Silva.

NYS: How do you source the products and artists you showcase?

AA: As an Art Curator I have learned to evolve. I also learned that I need to follow my instincts; when I like a piece of art, I research the artist and then I engage him or her in order to represent them.

NYS: Can you tell us an interesting story behind a piece you are carrying right now?

AA: My client comes for his appointment, looks around and says: "I feel as if I am in an orgy of color!" He then commissions a custom-made sculpture by Jeremy Silva and purchases one of the color-filled, amazing paintings from William Engel's newest collection.

NYS: Are there any upcoming events or exhibitions at your gallery?

AA: Yes. "The Spring Collection" opening is on March 3rd 2016 at Arlene Angard Gallery. The exhibit will be on view through April 5th.

NYS: What are you working on now?

AA: Curating my next Summer Exhibit. Renovating three New York City apartments, a house in New Jersey, and a house in Virginia.

NYS: Who would you most like to see walk through your door?

AA: Lady Gaga
